Statement of Accounts 2025

WORKERS PARTY OF BRITAIN

91 Church Road, Birmingham B13 9EA

George Galloway – Party Leader

Edward Renyard - Nominating Officer

Katherine Cremer – Registered Treasurer

The Year 2025

Looking back the year 2025 opened with the party hosting a successful Congress in Manchester, attended by more than 150 delegates at the Pendulum Hotel. We reported that Membership Records numbered 7,469 persons as the total number of members and supporters held on our records in accordance with GDPR, and at Congress 2025 there were 3,027 dues paying supporters. At the time of this report the record indicated 3,054 change to dues paying memberships and our total number of records exceeded 8,000 persons. A review and trim will be undertaken before the Annual Report for next year.

Our leadership at the time of writing remains largely as it was with some new co-opted members of the N.M.C. and Politburo. Our biggest change has been those brought about through political persecution. Congress elected a National Members Council of 100 persons, and George Galloway was elected party leader, Paul Cannon General Secretary, our deputy leaders are Chris Williamson, Imtiaz Ahmad, Andy Hudd, Peter Ford with NMC appointments being Ed Renyard (Nominating Officer), Katherine Cremer (Treasurer), Lauren Wilson (TU Officer), Shanaz Siddique (National Elections Coordinator), Hoz Shafaei, Chris Murphy (Media).

With a limited electoral offering in 2025 our work was very much focused on other forms of campaigning. Demonstrations, meetings, protests and marches were prominent. The party participated in many local and national activities, led on numerous demonstrations opposed to Digital ID but it was on the international questions related to British foreign policy which we were most prominent. Our party was active on Gaza, Lebanon, Iran, Venezuela, Russia and Ukraine, however, it was on the subject of China that we eventually were targeted. On 27 September party leader George Galloway and NMC deputy chair Gayatri Galloway were seized by counter-terrorism police at Gatwick airport as they made their way to speak at a rally to celebrate China's National Day, where they were scheduled to speak alongside the Ambassador Zheng Zeguang. Home Secretary Shabana Mahmood was famously excoriated in a subsequent episode of Moats ("she's metamorphosed from a butterfly to a slug") before Gayatri and George were forced into exile outside of the EU owing to Home Office attempts to stop them from speaking out against the government. The Party Statement read:

Our party believes in freedom of speech and defends the Rights won by our parents, grandparents and previous generations that allow us to speak our minds and challenge those in power. British people are proud of their freedoms.

In recent years these freedoms have been eroded. It has gone too far.

Our Party Leader George Galloway and Deputy Chair of our Members Council Gayatri Galloway were yesterday detained and denied legal services whilst held at Gatwick airport.

Neither under arrest nor allowed to leave, the Workers Party was prevented from providing legal support as officers seized personal items.

In recent months our One State Palestine (https://t.me/OneStatePalestine) and No 2 NATO (https://t.me/no2nato) campaigns have both been banned from X and suppressed on other platforms. In recent years our meetings have been cancelled, even at so-called free speech venues like Conway Hall.

During election campaigning our members have been physically assaulted, suffered hit and run attacks and abuse. All of this is documented in the press and known to the police.

We are not unique. From the Right and Left individuals and organisations of all types face censorship and intimidation. The only people left alone are the extreme liberals who seek to police everything, even the English language.

No matter what they do, the ruling elite cannot stop the forward march of history. Russia has won in Ukraine, China has won the technology race, Israel is exposed as a genocidal outpost of the old colonial world.

Britain needs to replace those who seek to censor and intimidate us. We need working class leaders who can chart a new peaceful path of development.

The detention of George and Gayatri was naturally a blow from which the party cannot recover easily. Legal work to overcome the situation is continuing, nevertheless the party deputy leaders have continued to meet online each week to set the political direction of the party alongside George.

Campaigns and Events

In 2025 the party launched a number of new fronts including the No Conscription League, One State Palestine, Campaign Talk and No 2 Digital ID as well as high-profile campaigns led by our members, such as Protect Palestine. The party continued to support the media work of the party Veterans Group and of No 2 Nato.

The No Conscription League was a huge success with more than 2,000 members by December 2025, the vast majority (90%+) of whom are non-party. More needs to be done to develop this area of work.

The One State Palestine campaign which we launched successfully made our party policy of a single state the campaigning priority and point of principal separating the 'official' Palestine solidarity movement in Britain from its mass working-class anti-imperialist base. Meetings across the country led to new alliances and closer work with the best campaigners, including the Activist Independent Movement, Islamic Human Rights Commission and others.

One State Palestine in a matter of days garnered nearly 10,000 following on the X account until it was banned, more than 2,000 subscribing to the YouTube after just two episodes, and a number of new volunteers stepping forward and new members coming to the Workers Party.

The Veterans Group and No 2 Nato were prominent features of our Springtime campaigning as we marked Victory Day on May 9 in London where we laid a wreath at the Soviet War Memorial. We then hosted a packed rally on May 10 in Bolivar Hall to mark Victory Day. This was the only meeting for Victory Day in western Europe to be addressed by an official of the Russian MFA, and we were joined by diplomats from Belarus, Venezuela, and the PR China, and groups such as the Friends of Socialist China. The meeting was chaired by the General Secretary and Mick Stott, Louise Scrivens, Shanaz Saddique and Jesse Williams spoke for the party. The event was a great success.

The following month on 28 June we held our Election launch rally, again in Bolivar Hall.

Elections

The opportunity for electioneering in 2025 was much reduced. In the Runcorn by-election we polled 164 votes and in the Doncaster mayoral contest we received 434 votes.

May Local Election results:

Steve Gower	Hempsted & Westgate	34
Rayyan Fiass	Burnley Central East	39
Laura Pugh	Balderstone & Kirkholt	398
Adam Goodfellow	The Cotes/Two Rivers	56
John Robert Homer	Attleborough	104

Electoral strategy discussions led to the introduction of new arrangements, these include: a £250 candidate fee, a recruitment expectation on non or new-party member applicants, a Bronze/Silver/Gold campaign expectation, a training programme for candidates, support videos, and a closer system of monitoring and review is in development. Clearer party expectations and closer supervision of candidates, alongside greater support should see improvements in May 2026.

Electoral Collaboration

The question of joint work with others on the electoral field was explored in the latter part of 2025. Successful collaboration deals were reached with a number of independent groups, and some Joint Electoral Descriptors were registered with the electoral commission between the Workers Party and other groups. However, following the announcement in the summer that Jeremy Corbyn was to lead a new party, most of the Left turned their attention to what became known as "Your Party". Although with hindsight it is hard to see what all the fuss was about, Your Party was all that many people could think of for much of the summer and autumn in 2025.

Our party from the start made clear our willingness to collaborate on the electoral front with forces that could undermine Labour and help us to achieve our main strategic objective in this current period: the destruction of the Labour party. Despite our best attempts, and to no real surprise, this was not possible. Consequently, as our party pursued open diplomatic work we privately began the work of organising a Conference to discuss the issues around affiliation. This Conference was to be held in late 2025 but owing to various reasons eventually took place in early 2026, adopting the following resolution of the Political Committee put forward in Winter 2025:

Resolution from Political Committee

Conference recognises the hope which greeted the initial announcement of Your Party in the summer of 2025 and sees in this the potential for a significant break between left social democracy and Labourism. As a strategic aim the break between the organised working-class movement and the Labour party remains the principal task of socialists in this era. Labour must be destroyed, it acts as prop of imperialism, waging war on working people at home and abroad.

Conference approves of the decisions of the Political Committee since Summer which have worked to achieve a broad electoral agreement with Your Party and other disparate independent political groupings which have emerged as a result of this split in left social democracy and the development of a broad movement sympathetic to the Palestinian people.

Conference applauds the significant diplomatic steps taken by the Workers Party to secure joint descriptions with independent forces, registered with the Electoral Commission and the ongoing negotiations with independent groups under the leadership of the party. These negotiations are aimed at forging the widest possible unity in the electoral arena against Labour candidates. In practice and not merely in words we have helped to construct a real united front against the Labour party in which many large and serious independent forces will participate and which remains open to the participation of others.

Conference notes that the Workers Party allows members to hold dual membership of organisations, so long as those memberships do not contradict the broad Aims of the Workers Party set forth in our Ten Point Programme, Rules and policies adopted at Congresses. In light of developments since Summer 2025 the party recognises that no arrangements have been established for collaboration with Your Party and there currently exists no electoral agreement. Whilst continuing to seek such an agreement with Your Party we shall place as much emphasis in unity with all other independent groups that can help break the Labour party and its grip on the British working class. It remains our belief that the Workers Party of Britain represents the most united socialist organisation suited to the work of undermining and finally unseating corrupt Labour politicians across Britain, the success of this task is crucial if the working people of Britain are to be able to develop a radical economic programme and independent foreign policy suited to a multipolar future.

Party Organisation

The party made and implemented a number of changes and improvements to its organisational work in line with the changes made in the Rule Book adopted by Congress in 2025.

The party appointed a National Organiser, and a Regional Organiser was appointed in each geographical area of Britain.

The Regional Organisers are appointed by the National Organiser to support our elected branch secretaries and candidates.

An appointed Regional Organiser must uphold the party policies and procedures, maintain legal compliance and help the flow of communication between the members and the central teams (Media, Leadership, Head Office).

The Regional Organising Team meets every week on a Tuesday at 8.30pm.

Growth

The main point to take relating to the period is firstly, that our organisation has grown in overall size, a respectable quantitative improvement. Second, we have grown in capability and talent. Third, we have broken through the media blackout, no matter what you think about the Workers Party, millions now know we exist. Fourth, our party has improved its campaigning machinery, despite the limitations of our work, our campaigning was of a more experienced and effective sort than even in Batley. Fifth, we have confounded our detractors and proven that we are a resilient organisation, we are now five years old, we are here to stay, we are no flash in the pan, rather we threw a flash grenade into British politics in 2024, a bright light that exploded as if from nowhere, waking up those who were sleeping, and terrifying those whose job it is to protect the fortunes of the Labour party.

Every year we produce a report of the work of the party. Copies of the previous annual reports can be read online, what will strike you, if you take the time to read them, and they are not very long, is the increasing variety of activities we have carried out, and the modest successes we've had in a short space of time.

What is the reason for the broad variety of activities and our success? Without a doubt it is our flexibility, our agility.

Every member can have their own area of activity, we don't want to stand in anybody's way if they can develop and lead on productive work. The new Members Council, and the political leadership of this party will only place in your way such rules and regulations as are necessary to maintain a cohesion in party life, and a unity of purpose on the field of political struggle. We require volunteers who are willing to lead on every front. We expect members to own areas of responsibility and to actually produce some tangible benefit, to be productive and to try to coach others. If you step up to lead on an area of work and fail to do so, you must step aside and not prevent someone else from contributing.

What are we trying to do? What is the party?

Our Party is unique in Britain. There is not another party like us. We are guided by our socialist beliefs, but we are not fettered by the past. Not fettered by the iconography and forms of the past when they don't correspond to the work in front of us. What is that work? It is taking our message and connecting it with the mass of the British workers.

A great many, perhaps nearly a hundred parties were declared to be the party of the working class in our country since the 1970's. Some went further and claimed to be the vanguard of the class, the highest expression of the consciousness of the British workers and so on. These parties all came to nothing. It didn't matter that they openly adopted the 21 Thesis of the International, or that they put into writing that they observed a monolithic discipline and marched like an army and so on. Words are not deeds. It is a lot harder to build a party than to write one into existence. An impeccable Rule Book, Programme etc is barely a start. Every step of real movement is more important than a dozen programmes

Our party was only founded in 2019. It develops at the same time as it grows and it grows and develops in fits and starts. It's an organic process, there is no balance or peace. Its growth and its development, its size and its quality, are inseparable, each is the condition for the existence of the other.

What does that mean? Practically it means that there is no super resolution or motion we can pass to fix the problems associated with our development. We can and regularly do sit down and list all the things the party should do better, all the things the party can improve on, and it's not hard. More social media, more followers, more members, more leaders, more propagandists, more canvassers, more activists, etc. Then there are the qualitative reforms which are merely the other side of the coin, better social media, better followers, better members, better leaders, better propagandists, better canvassers, better activists, etc!

Listing the things which would improve our work, in absolute or relative terms is the easy bit. The difficult part is understanding in which areas of our work we have the actual capacity to make improvements, and then to make them. This capacity is first and foremost human resources. Do we have the people, do the people we have, have the skills? These are no easy problems to overcome in a constantly growing organisation of volunteers.

This challenge applies to all the work we are currently doing well: media work, design work, electioneering, agitational work, publicity work and so on.

Yes, money would help, but it is just a part of the process.

Motions on organisational matters, like motions on values and principles, can only do so much. The values, the ethics of an organisation reflect the values and ethics of the people who have already joined. So, a good start is important as it sets the direction and influences the types of people who want to join and the types of ethics and values those people bring.

The logic that the Workers Party was founded upon is solid. Therefore, despite all the risks, usually exaggerated, of infiltration and ideological decay, our party has headed off in the right direction right from the start. When studying any object, we study its essence and its outward appearance.

We are founded upon our opposition to Labour, that is our essence. If we can contribute to breaking the link between the working people, the organised labour movement and the misnamed Labour party – we will have served a useful function in the life of our country and its future development.

We are also founded upon a fierce anti-imperialist outlook, an independent vision of Britain's relations with the world, and no matter the differences which arise this vision continues to set us at odds with all the other parties. Every member has a right to hold views that contradict with the line of the party, and the party has the right to defend its views, its line, and to challenge those members on these issues. That does not mean that every dispute leads to an amicable resolution, but neither does it have to lead to an acrimonious parting.

Since new challenges are constantly arising in the domestic and international scene, since the world is in a constant process of development, we should expect differences of opinion to arise. We need enough stability for members to be comfortable, creative and productive without the party collapsing. We need a level of autonomy but we need cohesion. People knowing what is going on, but not engaged in an endless discussion, dispute or distraction over every detail of policy. As George has said, too much policy causes constipation in a political party.

Everybody who has helped to get us to where we are today can be satisfied with the progress. The direction we are travelling in is a good one. There are no guarantees in life, the things we win in struggle must be fought for over and over again, we win no permanent victory and can suffer no permanent defeats.

This year, our most viewed post was our announced standing down for the Gorton by-election viewed 363, 000 times.

Due to the liberal nature of TikTok, we have reduced a great deal of our output, creating an UpScrolled account late January this year, to post on, particularly for controversial content.

At the end of 2026, we had 22, 867 followers. We currently now in April 2026 have 24, 300 followers.

Our views for 2025 were 800, 902.

The 3.5 months of 2026 we have had 2,912, 392 views. This is no part attributed by local election posts, most notably ones featuring colourful candidates like Julian.

We have struggled to get over a thousand views on our TikTok content, but clips of Julian has yielded some of our most viewed content ever on that platform.

Overall, despite the lack of consistent manpower at times, we are doing a decent job in amplifying the work and positioning of the party on the stage locally, nationally and internationally.
